Rome Riot Echoes Disorder In France

Leftists Battle Police

ROME (AP) — The streets of Rome were littered with charred automobiles, shattered glass and dried blood today in an echo of the chaos that has rocked France.

The disorder here began with student seizure of the University of Rome Friday and swelled into a major street riot in which demonstrators, mainly students, battled helmeted police with clubs and makeshift fire bombs.

The riot was confined to a small section near the French Embassy and was quelled in little more than an hour, but it touched off fears for more of the same as leftists in Rome followed the pattern of the rebellion in France.

STUDENTS' POSTER

The students who occupied the university put up a poster at the main entrance reading: "Rome like Paris."

The massive demonstration outside the French Embassy, which included burning President Charles de Gaulle in effigy, was spurred by the powerful Italian Communist party and by pro-Communist Socialists.

Communist speakers urged the demonstrators to show their solidarity with striking students and workers in France.

The Rome upheaval came as Italy functioned under a lame duck government after parliamentary elections which strengthened the Communists and weakened the Socialists. The Socialists were divided on whether to bolt the Center-Left coalition with the Christian Democrats. Some Socialists said the coalition had robbed the party of its progressive image.

Moderate party members said a pullout could play into Communist hands and lead to the kind of crisis now convulsing France.

MANY INJURED

Scores of persons were injured when police and demonstrators battled with clubs and fists in front of the beautiful 16th century French Embassy building and in streets around the quaint Campo dei Fiori—Field of the Flowers—fruit market.

Only a handful of those taken into custody were charged immediately, however. They included three students and a tradesman.

Police charged into the demonstrators after youths screaming "De Gaulle get out" and "Red France" burned an effigy of the French president and hurled the flaming dummy toward the guards outside the embassy.

Paris Peace Negotiators Take Time Out

PARIS (AP) — The disclosure that Hanoi is sending one of its key officials to the U.S.-North Vietnamese peace talks has raised speculation that North Vietnam may be planning some tactical shift in its bargaining position.

New Strike Is Set For Midnight

Iron Workers Reject Offer

Members of Local 292, International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, rejected an 80 cents per hour wage offer by a 140 to 0 vote Friday night and officially go on strike at midnight tonight.

Representatives of the local and the South Bend-Mishawaka Contractors Association are continuing to meet, however, with a negotiating session scheduled for today. Local 292 covers Berrien and Cass counties with about 50 workers in this area.

Russell Wilburn, agent for Local 292, said the union's international had approved a strike. The contractors offered a 20-cent wage hike now, 20 cents for the pension fund November 1, a 15 cent wage hike and five cent welfare fund hike June 1, 1969, and a 20 cent wage hike Nov. 1, 1969. Iron workers now receive $5.20 per hour plus 46 cents divided into 25 cents pension, 20 cents welfare and one cent apprenticeship.

Main jobs affected by the strike here are the Mercy and Memorial hospital construction, the new Coca Cola plant and Potlatch Industrial plant on Hawthorne in St. Joseph, and six construction jobs by Pearson Construction Company. Earlier the iron workers said they would not establish picket lines unless contractors attempted to do iron workers' work.

A North Vietnamese spokesman said Friday that "one of our responsible people is coming to Paris." He was identified later as Le Duc Tho, a member of the central committee and politburo of the Communist party of North Vietnam.

Tho is viewed by U.S. experts on North Vietnam as an important member of the ruling group in Hanoi.

TALKS IN RECESS

The talks between U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and Xuan Thuy of North Vietnam are in recess until Wednesday. Tho, who is probably traveling by way of Moscow as other members of the Hanoi delegation have done, presumably will be in Paris by that time.

Meanwhile Cyrus R. Vance, deputy to Harriman, is expected back here Sunday from Washington, where he reported to President Johnson on the talks. He left after the fifth meeting last Monday.

The questions about Tho's mission which interest U.S. officials here are whether he is bringing any new instructions to Thuy on new maneuvers by the North Vietnamese in the conference.

Friday's meeting, the sixth since the talks started three weeks ago, produced no movement toward agreement by either side.

U.S. spokesman William J. Jordan said, however, the meeting was marked by spontaneous discussion—slightly more informal talks and less speech-making. But the result was the same, he said, no action on escalating the war.

Another development which some Americans found slightly encouraging was that midway in their session of almost four hours, the two delegations took a refreshment break. They were served tea and soft drinks by the French staff at the International Conference Center.

This was the first time such a social touch had been injected.

Mistakes Him For Prowler

Condition Of Lad Is Critical

A 14-year-old St. Joseph junior high school boy was listed in critical condition at South Bend Memorial hospital this morning after being shot shortly after midnight by a neighbor who said he mistook the boy for a prowler.

John A. Robandt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman A. Robandt, of 1473 North Manor, St. Joseph township was shot with a 12-gauge shotgun by Siegfried Zielke, 42, of 1468 South Manor, sheriff's deputies said.

Zielke told Deputy Dave Hanner he was awakened during the night by strange noises. Twice he went outside his house and discovered nothing. The third time he walked down the block with the shotgun and saw the boy running. Zielke said he fired into the air from his hip. He saw the boy fall down. Then he shot in the air again, he said, but didn't know why.

TAPPED ON WINDOW
A friend of the family said this morning that the Robandt boy and his brother, Paul, had sneaked out of the house earlier, and were trying to awaken their friend, Norman Zielke, Siegfried Zielke's son.

Their tapping on the window was apparently the noise that roused the older Zielke.

Deputies said Zielke discovered the boy he shot was the friend of his son and helped him into the house. Robandt's parents were called, and the ambulance took the boy to St. Joseph Memorial hospital. He was given first aid and immediately rushed to South Bend's Memorial hospital to be placed under the care of a neurosurgeon.

Deputy Hanner, who investigated the shooting, said the boy was struck in the head and back by pellets from the gun. He added that the boy fell to the ground 14 yards from where Zielke said he had fired the first shot.

Dr. Luther Zick, St. Joseph surgeon, said the gunshot inflicted multiple wounds about the boy's head and neck. One pellet pierced an eye and lodged in the brain. One lung was partially collapsed.

According to Deputy Hanner's report, Zielke said when he went outside the third time he saw a figure run across his yard into the yard of a neighbor, Jack B. Hart. It was at that point that Zielke said he fired his gun from the hip and the figure fell.

FIRE AGAIN
Zielke added, according to Hanner's report, he saw another figure, apparently the younger brother, Paul Robandt, run to the fallen boy. He fired the gun again, he said. Hanner quoted Zielke as saying he could not explain why he shot the second time, other than to say he was in shock.

Man, Boy Shoot Themselves

List Both Cases As Accidents

A Benton Harbor boy and a young Baroda man accidentally shot themselves in separate incidents last night.

Listed in fair condition at Mercy hospital is Howard Harmon, 16, of 1228 Pearl street, Benton Harbor. City police have the boy listed as Tommy Harmon, who accidentally shot himself at the steps of Hall Park near Hull avenue.

Police said Harmon removed his father's .32 caliber pistol without permission and was trying to shoot it. The bullet hit him in the right lower abdomen.

Treated and released at Memorial hospital was Michael Pollach, 20, of Baroda. While visiting the Edward Hampton residence at Marquette Woods Road, Stevensville, Berrien sheriff's deputies said Pollach was handling a .22 caliber rifle. Pollach reportedly put his foot on a coffee table, aimed the gun at his foot and fired. Pollach told deputies he didn't think the gun was loaded.

QUICK FREEZE?

Pensioner Won't Be Out In Cold

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Detroit pensioner thinking of having his body frozen alive for 10 years and then thawed out is chilled by the prospect of losing his Social Security checks in the meantime.

But Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., says he checked the matter out for the man and finds he'd get his money "as long as competent evidence shows the person to be alive."

There has been talk of freezing live bodies as a way of saving victims of fatal diseases until cures are discovered.

But there is no record that anyone has tried it.

If the Detroiters know how to prove a frozen person is alive, Griffin said, the government won't give him a cold shoulder.

Atom Plant 'Attacked' Accidentally

Ship's Guns Point In Wrong Direction

LONDON (AP) — A British navy frigate accidentally fired two shells toward a government atomic research station on the south coast of England, the navy reported today. The shots missed.

Officers at Portland Royal Navy station said the frigate Arctura somehow banged off two practice shells Tuesday with the ship's guns pointing toward shore instead of out to sea.

The shells landed in farm country two miles west of the Winfrith Nuclear Center in Dorset.

CATTLE FLEE

The missiles were duds filled with sand but one of them started a cattle stampede.

Farmer's wife Joan Bamlet said she was standing in her garden when she heard a whistling sound and a thud. Cows started running frantically from a nearby field and a navy helicopter whirled overhead looking for the impact area.

The navy started an investigation, recovered one shell—and invited Mrs. Bamlet to tea aboard the Arctura.

McCarthy Says Bobby Shuns Real Debate

Sen. Eugene McCarthy D-Minn., taunted Sen. Robert Kennedy, D-N.Y., in advance of their televised meeting tonight, which could heat up their long-awaited confrontation. The debate of the two Democratic presidential candidates will be televised nationally at 9:30 EDT tonight by the American Broadcasting Co. McCarthy needed Kennedy Friday about his record on the Vietnam war and questioned whether Kennedy would really drop out of the running as he has said if he loses in the California primary next week. McCarthy also implied that Kennedy was refusing to engage in a genuine debate, preferring a discussion format for the program tonight.

LBJ Concedes on Budget Cut and Tax Hike

President Johnson used Memorial Day as the occasion for a press conference on two tough questions.

The peace talks, he reminded the audience, are not going very well. There is no great news in that statement, but the Presidential recitation, backstopped by General Westmoreland's comment on the military situation, scotches other Administration utterances hinting a breakthrough in the Paris discussions might come quickly. Vice President Humphrey has been the major wellspring of those cheery observations lately.

As for the war on inflation at home and the assault upon the dollar from abroad, the President said he will go along, most reluctantly, on a $6 billion cut in his 1968-69 budget in exchange for the 10% surtax on the income tax.

A quickly arranged interview with Cong. Wilbur Mills (D., Ark.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, had him remarking this is what he had been saying was necessary all along.

Previously LBJ had offered a $4 billion spending reduction as a rock bottom figure on which the government can do business in the forthcoming fiscal year.

In another tack he proposed the alluring prospect of slicing $4 billion from the budget itself and $10 billion from the unobligated funds account. The latter is money voted by deficiency appropriations to tide over a program or a department which has a way of overspending its regular budget.

Nobody bought this $14 billion gimmick because most of it was merely a promise not to ask at some future date for something which has no present existence.

Theoretically if the budget is reduced by $6 billion and the surtax is enacted the government should eliminate the $19 billion deficit forecasted in LBJ's budget message earlier this year.

Uncle Sam won't erase the presidential red ink but the promise is he would not add it during fiscal 1968-69.

This being an election year the interesting question is who will do the knifing and whose ox will be gored.

Presumably it is up to LBJ to revise his first budget, although Congress could perform the surgery by slapping a percentage reduction across the board.

Just to make certain the Presidential concession is enforced, Congress might well use its own operating room.

If, though, an overall percentage reduction is not followed, then the pick and choose system must follow.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare appears to be one likely victim in that process, or at least HEW already is broadcasting it will be a principal sacrificial lamb.

Along with HUD (Housing and Urban Development), HEW is a major fund dispenser in the anti-poverty program.

Anti-poverty has so many ramifications the government itself must catalogue them, but if this bureaucratic maze perplexes the average citizen, its spending effect touches a lot of bases.

Ordinarily an election year is the world's worst time to raise taxes and cut spending. Too many votes are touched by either action.

HEW's sending up a distress signal indicates, possibly, that LBJ knows of some pockets which can be drawn tighter without disturbing too many people on November 6th.

However the budget cut will be accomplished, this is the first time since Woodrow Wilson's days in the White House that Congress has negotiated a sizeable attack upon a Presidential spending plan.

A token reaction in that regard occurred during Ike's second term, but there was more talk than action.

Further Complicating The Vietnamese War

As if it is not experiencing enough trouble in subduing the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese regulars, the Defense Department is saddled with a combination troop and home front invitation.

It started with a well intentioned order from a Marine general in charge of an integrated command for his Southern boys to take down the Confederate flag from their jeeps and dugouts.

Down the line a subordinate officer spotted another flag closely resembling the Confederate emblem. He had that one hauled in. It was the state flag of Georgia. Although Georgia held back during the Civil War from helping her sister commonwealths very much until Sherman showed up at Atlanta's doorstep, the Peach state has more than made up for it by flagstaff promotional efforts.

The lad who was displaying the Georgia flag wrote his mother and Governor Maddox. His mother turned her missive over to her Congressman, W.S. (Bill) Stuckey, who's been shooting for the Pentagon's scalp ever since.

Why is it, he asks, that boys from New York, Ohio and other northern states can display their state emblems, but not a soldier boy from Georgia, Alabama,

Mississippi and other points south?

The answer, at least that of the Marine commander, is that the Confederate flag is racist symbolism to the Negro troops and to many Negroes at home. In fact, there has been considerable correspondence on the subject between the Defense Department and Negro groups.

Just to confuse the issue a bit more, the Defense Department has no interdiction against displaying state or regional flags in battle zones. If the American flag is shown, these local flags must go below Old Glory, but otherwise a soldier or sailor can show off his state flag or other banners as he would the latest pin-up photo of Sophia Loren.

Neither is there any regulation authorizing the display of any emblem but the national colors and the heraldry of the various units within the armed forces.

Cong. Stuckey is right in saying it is discrimination to ban Georgia's flag but to allow New York's to be shown.

More to the point, it is silly to have permitted these state and regional emblems to creep in at all.

Presumably the armed forces function for the benefit of the U.S.A., not for Georgia, Ohio, the Confederacy or the Northwest Territories.

Pin-ups, yes; local insignia, no.

I & M PROJECT BOOST TO BOATERS

Area boating and canoeing enthusiasts have received a boost from Indiana & Michigan Electric Company with the announcement that the utility had consigned leases to two plots of land adjacent to its Buchanan hydrogenerating facilities to Buchanan township for development of a recreational area. John P. Banyon, I & M's Benton Harbor division manager, said that improvements planned by the utility at the two sites would vastly enhance the general public's enjoyment of the boating and canoeing opportunities afforded by the St. Joseph river.

Banyon said I & M would pave two boat ramps, one above and another below its hydro dam, that would permit canoeists to portage around the dam and enable boaters to launch their crafts at either of the two sites.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Taming Kidnaper

Of all the agonies inflicted upon the family of a kidnaper, probably the worst is the fear that harm will befall their loved one.

To stay the kidnapper's hand, the Federal Kidnapping Act — and some state kidnap laws as well — impose a milder penalty on the kidnapper if he releases the victim unharmed.

What does that mean? What kind of "harm" are these laws talking about?

LOCKED IN, BOUND

Obviously there is harm inflicted, calling for the heavier penalty, when the victim has been subjected to a deliberate beating or a criminal assault.

Likewise, a court held that harm had been inflicted when two women and a child were locked in a small, overheated closet, and later bound hand and foot with ropes and wire.

On the other hand, when the only injury was that the kidnapper had gripped the victim's arms hard enough to hurt, the court refused to impose the heavier penalty.

"Such trivial injury," said the judge, "is not sufficient to constitute bodily harm."

Suppose the injury is indeed serious, but — rather than being inflicted by the kidnaper — is the result of the victim's own attempt to escape. Does that kind of an injury "count" against the kidnapper?

NOT JUSTIFIED

The court said yes in one case, in which a girl was hurt when she jumped from a moving car. The court reasoned that, since the kidnapper had been threatening to assault her, the dangers of an attempted flight could fairly be attributed to him.

But in another case, where no threats or harm preceded the escape attempt, the court ruled that the resulting injury could not justify a heavier penalty against the kidnapper.

It may seem strange to draw such careful distinctions in judging someone as reprehensible as a kidnapper.

Yet, after all, the law's purpose is not to do the kidnapper any favors but to reduce the danger to his victim. This can be achieved only if the kidnapper has reason to believe that, if he goes easier on the victim, the law will go easier on him.

IT HAPPENED TODAY

On this day, in 1785, John Adams became the first ambassador to England.

June 2, 1886, the first White House wedding of a president, Grover Cleveland, took place.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

The first cows imported into the United States arrived from Devon, England, in March 1624, at Plymouth Colony, Mass.

BORN TODAY

At his death in Salt Lake City, on Aug. 29, 1877, Brigham Young was survived by his 17 wives and 47 children. This great Mormon leader was born at Whitingham, Vt., 1801.

In between those two dates, Brigham Young left his mark in the religious history of his people and in the political region of the state of Utah.

When he was 28 years old, he moved to Mendon, N.Y., and three years later joined the newly organized Mormon Church. He was appointed an apostle in 1835, played a leading role in the removal of the Mormons from Missouri to Illinois and, in 1840, went to England to direct Mormon missionary work out of Liverpool.

With the death of the prophet Joseph Smith, founder of the sect, in 1844, he returned to America to take over the leadership of the church.

A skillful organizer and administrator, he began the Herculean task of leading his people out of Illinois to a new land in 1846.

Early in 1847, Young, leading the advance band, reached the valley of Great Salt Lake and founded Salt Lake City.

In moral and economic areas his word was law. When the Territory of Utah was organized in 1850, he was appointed governor. Because of his defiance of the United States in the so-called Mormon War, he was not re-appointed governor, but he remained a supreme power.

He encouraged agriculture, established businesses, founded Deseret University and Brigham Young Academy and laid the foundations of the Mormon Temple.

Others born today include singer Pat Boone, poet John Masefield.

Born on June 2 were Thomas Hardy, Pope Pius X and Hedda Hopper.

.. And Speaking Of Your Health

Diet for the control of overweight alone would seem to be the major reason for its study. In reality, variations of diet have been part of a huge research program, in an effort to find the relationship of obesity with certain diseases.

A very carefully controlled scientific project has been going on for seven years and is known as National Diet-Heart Study. Its main purpose is to learn the relationship between diet and some aspects of heart disease. About fifteen hundred men between the ages of 40 and 59 are kept on a low fat diet in an effort to reduce the amount of cholesterol in the blood. There is now sufficient grounds for enthusiasm because of the reduction of heart attacks in young men, to continue the study on a much larger scale. The purpose of the study is to settle any question about the value of low fat diets and low cholesterol in the blood, as a preventative against coronary heart disease.

I recently reported the fact that an Italian physician developed a special diet of spaghetti, lasagna, and fettucini for patients with chronic kidney disease. The last reports are that monuments are being created all over Italy not only for this aid to sufferers from kidney disease but for promoting a national eating pastime.

Psoriasis is a chronic skin condition whose cause is yet unknown. There are a variety of kinds. The most common one has grayish white scales over the elbows and knees and on other parts of the body. This skin condition is a nuisance because of its unsightly appearance and because so little can be done about it.

Last year a group of patients with psoriasis were given a diet that consisted of liberal portions of white turkey meat twice a day. This is one of the diets being studied for a possible relationship with this annoying condition.

A high percentage of these patients with psoriasis seemed to feel better and their dry, scaly patches cleared away in a matter of a few weeks. The meaning of the relationship between white turkey meat and the cure of psoriasis is still a matter of guesswork, but it most certainly will be pursued. During warm weather and when skin is exposed to sunlight, psoriasis will, of its own accord, tend to get better. The question now to be answered is did these patients spontaneously get well, or was there a real relationship between their temporary cure and their turkey diet?

Another intensive study of diets is concentrated on deficiencies in the amount of zinc they contain, because of the possible relationship between such a diet and rheumatoid arthritis. The observation has been made that when chickens were fed diets deficient in zinc, they developed changes in the joints resembling arthritis. This lead will, of course, be followed with intense interest by all scientists working on the origin and control of arthritis.

Modern civilization, with all its wealth and apparent good nutrition, may yet be shown to be surviving on inadequate diets, responsible for many types of illness.

Take this hand played by Bobby Reynolds the year (1960) he won the Life Masters Individual championship. His partner was young Arthur Robinson, who finished second.

Reynolds has shown at least ten cards in the majors by his jump to four hearts, and Robinson therefore knew there could be no losers in the minor suits.

Reynolds had also indicated two aces and two kings in responding to Blackwood, and Robinson quite reasonably assumed they were in the suits South had named. So Robinson undertook the grand slam, for better or worse.

West led the king of clubs. Reynolds discarded a diamond on the ace and cashed the A-K of spades. He then ruffed a spade in dummy, being careful to trump with the jack.

After ruffing a club in his hand and another spade in dummy with the queen, he led a trump. East played the seven, deliberately fальсifying in the hope that South, who had the A-K-10-8 of trumps left, would go up with a high trump in the expectation of finding the normal 3-2 division.

But Reynolds eyed the seven with deep suspicion. He reasoned that if the seven was on the level it was either a singleton, in which case the slam could not be made; or a doubleton, in which case it would be accompanied by the nine; or else a deliberate attempt to camouflage a holding of four hearts to the nine.

Reynolds was not sure of the exact situation, but he decided, all factors considered, that it was best to finesse the eight. Accordingly, he finessed and thus brought home the grand slam.

Opening lead — king of clubs. Not all problems that arise during the play have clear-cut solutions. Occasionally declarer must play by ear without being certain that his decisions will prove correct.

Take this hand played by Bobby Reynolds the year (1960) he won the Life Masters Individual championship. His partner was young Arthur Robinson, who finished second.

Reynolds has shown at least ten cards in the majors by his jump to four hearts, and Robinson therefore knew there could be no losers in the minor suits.

Reynolds had also indicated two aces and two kings in responding to Blackwood, and Robinson quite reasonably assumed they were in the suits South had named. So Robinson undertook the grand slam, for better or worse.

West led the king of clubs. Reynolds discarded a diamond on the ace and cashed the A-K of spades. He then ruffed a spade in dummy, being careful to trump with the jack.

After ruffing a club in his hand and another spade in dummy with the queen, he led a trump. East played the seven, deliberately fальсifying in the hope that South, who had the A-K-10-8 of trumps left, would go up with a high trump in the expectation of finding the normal 3-2 division.

But Reynolds eyed the seven with deep suspicion. He reasoned that if the seven was on the level it was either a singleton, in which case the slam could not be made; or a doubleton, in which case it would be accompanied by the nine; or else a deliberate attempt to camouflage a holding of four hearts to the nine.

Reynolds was not sure of the exact situation, but he decided, all factors considered, that it was best to finesse the eight. Accordingly, he finessed and thus brought home the grand slam.

Pat Henry doesn't think his new neighbors were too happy to see him move into their midst. "It's just your super-sensitivity," deprecated a fellow thespian. "What can you cite as a definite proof of your contention?" "Well for one thing," recalled Henry, "the day after I moved in I was run down by the welcome wagon."

A lady was having trouble getting her car started when the light turned green in a traffic jam. The unfeeling gent in the car behind her began blowing his horn furiously. After some moments, with a traffic cop bearing down upon her, she climbed resolutely out of her car and walked to her noisy tormentor.

"I can't seem to get my motor started," she told him, smiling grimly. "Now why don't you go up there and see what you can do about it. I'll stay back here and honk your horn for you."

Benton Man Faces 5 Charges

A Benton township resident was released on $4,000 bond yesterday after being arrested on four counts of gross indecency. Harry Heiss, 43, Route 2, Benton Harbor, was apprehended by sheriff's deputies Wednesday evening on Main street in St. Joseph. They had a warrant for his arrest.

Upon searching Heiss' car, a pistol was found, deputies said. Heiss was also charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

Hubert Due
At State
ConventionReuther Neutral
As Democrats
Meet In Detroit

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is moving to ambush what his aides say is a stop-Humphrey drive in delegate-rich Michigan by the combined forces of Sens. Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy, his rivals for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Humphrey is flying to Detroit today, where Michigan Democrats are in convention to choose the delegates who will carry the state's 96 votes into the August national convention in Chicago.

How the Michigan convention swings may be a strong indication of whether a Humphrey bandwagon is rolling in the aftermath of Kennedy's setback in the Oregon primary last Tuesday.

UNION LEADERS

Humphrey appears at the moment to have an edge among Michigan union leaders over Kennedy.

Still to take a public stand on presidential hopefuls are the two top men of labor in Michigan—United Auto Workers President Walter Reuther and AFL-CIO State President August "Gus" Scholle.

Under Reuther's urging, delegates representing his 1.6 million UAW members decided the union would make no choice in the presidential race until after the candidates are nominated.

Individual union members, however, were authorized to express personal choices.

Scholle is tabbed by most as in Humphrey's camp, and so is his AFL-CIO vice president, William "Bill" Marshall.

STOP HUMPHREY

Humphrey's aides say they have evidence that McCarthy and Kennedy staff members are working together on the delegates at the Motor City.

Humphrey is considered to be far ahead of either Kennedy or McCarthy in the nationwide roundup of delegates, even though he is not running in the primaries. Humphrey said this week he has more than 600 pledged delegates—and he emphasized pledged rather than those simply leaning in his direction.

Some Humphrey supporters feel he could win the nomination on the first ballot if the convention were held today.

Some observers say Michigan was the most likely place to derail Humphrey's delegate-hunting express, which loaded more delegates at Pennsylvania and Florida this week.

Michigan has been the one big industrial state where party and labor leaders were not all committed to Humphrey. They preferred to take a public stance of neutrality.

AIR OF UNCERTAINTY

Some observers in Detroit say Humphrey might win a majority of the Michigan delegates but no one seemed ready to make a specific prediction.

"There's an awful lot of moving around and changes going on up there," said a Humphrey campaign assistant.

Kennedy advocates currently are urging that the state's delegation to the party's national convention maintain an uncommitted posture until the balloting starts in Chicago.

But Humphrey backers among labor officials and expected national convention delegates, who decline to be named publicly for the time being say that the non-commitment being urged by Democratic State Chairman Sander Levin will be broken no later than Sunday night.

COURT BATTLE

Backers of Sens. Robert Kennedy, D-N. Y., and Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., already have joined forces in court to win an order barring from the convention a pro-Humphrey delegation elected from the state's third-largest county.

An order preventing seating of the Macomb County delegation elected during a stormy county gathering May 17 was signed Friday — on the state convention's eve — by Circuit Judge Alton Noe.

At a later hearing, however, Noe vacated the order. Macomb County Democratic officials argued that they did not have the power to call a new convention and that the plaintiffs' only recourse was to challenge the seating of the delegation before the state convention's credentials committee.

Officials of the district Conference of Concerned Democrats and Kennedy for President Committee said they would go ahead with plans to hold their own convention Friday night and send a separate delegation to the state convention.

Negroes, meanwhile, newly organized in a "Black Caucus," contended their race is underrepresented in national convention delegates already chosen from around the state and are demanding at least half of the 24 at-large seats. Threats of a Negro walkout have been heard.

Humphrey's backers claim from 55 to 75 of the '02 Michigan delegate votes. Kennedy will be represented at the state convention by his brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

State party leaders have counseled Democratic neutrality in the Humphrey-Kennedy-McCarthy presidential runoff and many county conventions—held in mid May—passed resolutions following that lead.

Big Labor, traditionally a potent force in the Michigan Democratic Party, prefers Humphrey.

LIBERAL GROUP

Both Kennedy and McCarthy have found support in the year-old Conference of Concerned Democrats (CCD), a liberal group formed largely to oppose President Johnson and the Vietnam War.

At a news conference Friday, CCD spokesmen charged that state party leaders have "by and large been consistently governed by a personal commitment to the unpopular incumbent administration and its chief defender, Hubert Humphrey."

The CCD leaders also said they would support Negro demands for proportionate representation in the Michigan delegation.

Boys Tell
How Their
Pal DiedGasoline Sniffing
Ends In Tragedy
At New Buffalo

By BILL RUMBLER
South Berrien Bureau

NEW BUFFALO — Questioning of three local youths revealed that David Lynn Baxter died after inhaling fumes from 21 cents worth of gasoline, city Police Chief Dale Siebenmark stated yesterday.

There will be no prosecution in connection with the death, he noted, adding that it is not against Michigan law to sniff gasoline.

The body of the 13-year-old boy was found Tuesday evening in a densely wooded ravine off East Merchant street. An hour of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation by police officers, bystanders and a doctor failed to revive Baxter, the son of Mrs. Carlton Baxter of route 1, New Buffalo.

CHANGE STORY

Two 14-year-old boys first gave police a different story concerning the death, saying that they became separated from Baxter in the ravine and then a few minutes later found him lying face down.

Later, the youths told Siebenmark that four of them, including Baxter, purchased 21 cents worth of gasoline at a local service station and went down into the ravine to sniff the fumes.

One youngster declined to indulge, they related and two others poured some gas into beer cans to sniff, while Baxter kept the two gallon can, which they estimated was filled with a quart of gas, Siebenmark said.

The youths said Baxter took about half a dozen deep breaths with his mouth cupped over the spout. After this he stood up and the boys noted that he looked funny, his eyes rolling, as if he "were on a trip," Siebenmark stated.

He reeled off farther down the ravine, the boys said, and was not followed, but after five minutes, they decided to look for him, finding him lying near a stream.

BREATHES, THEN STOPS

They tried mouth-to-mouth resuscitation the youngsters said, reporting that Baxter seemed to breathe for a time but then again stopped.

At this time they ran for adult help, Siebenmark added.

An autopsy on the boy revealed that he died of a toxic condition.

What caused this condition has not yet been determined by the state police crime lab in Lansing.

Baxter was a seventh grade student at the Central school in New Buffalo.

Burial was to be at Hohenwald, Tenn., from where the family moved 11 months ago.
